BOOST A BIT.

Here, you discontented knocker,
Growlin' 'bout the city's ills,
Chloroform yere dismal talker;
Take a coarse o' liver pills,
Stop yer durn kit'o'tee howlin',
Chaw some sand an' get some grit;
Don't let in the dumps a growlin'
Jump the roost
An' boost
A bit!
Fall in while the band's a pla'in,
Ketch the step an' march along—
'Stead o' pessimistic brayin'
Jine the halleluyah song!
Drop yer hammer—do some rootin'—
Grab a horn, you cuss, an' split
Every echo with yer tootin'—
Jump the roost
An' boost
A bit!

Duty on Coffee.

In 1872 both tea and coffee were put upon the free list. The object of removing the duty on these commodities was to reduce reveuue, which was in excess of our requirements at the time, but some genius invented the phrase "free breakfast table," which was adopted by the spellbinders as conveying the notion of unusual beneficence in the Government of the day. As a matter of fact no American was benefited in the least by the removal of the tax on coffee, for the Brazilian Government promptly clapped on an export tax equivalent to the duty which we removed, and the only important consequence of that "beneficence" was that the Brazilian treasury got the tax instead of our own. The cost laid down in New York remained unchanged by any Tariff regulations except that the "import price" increased nearly 7 cents a pound within two years, which might indicate that Brazil put on rather more duty than we took off. The Brazilian export tax still continues, and it is estimated that since 1872 the Brazilian treasury has gained over $300,000,000 at our expense.—San Francisco "Chronicle."

64 Years of Happy Married Life.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Russell, of Mason Hill, invited many of their friends and relatives to help them celebrate the 64th anniversary of their marriage, June 17th. The day was spent in chatting with old friends and the noon hour in feasting. These aged people have lived on Mason Hill for several years and are loved and esteemed by all who know them. Their health is good, considering their age. Friends, when leaving, did not say good-bye but wished them many more years together and that all might come to help them celebrate their diamond wedding. Of seven living children three were present: Mrs. James Bennett, of Croyland; Bert, of Mix Run and Ed. who is now making his home with his parents.

$1 a Year on Each Hen.

The largest egg farm in the world is owned and managed by C. E. L. Hayward at Hancock, N. H. It has at this time over 8,400 hens, kept in 600 small houses, fourteen in each. The hens are never allowed outside their little eight-foot square coops, and are never fed green feed, contrary to the teaching of all other poultry feeders. Each hen gets a quarter of a pound per day of beef scraps, gluten, hominy feed, wheat, etc, with a little salt, ground shells, grit and charcoal, and plenty of clean water. An annual profit of $1 per hen is reported as proof of the practicability of this system.

Stenography and Type Writing.

Will teach shorthand and type writing at my home on Fourth street, during the summer months. Graham's Standard method of shorthand taught and the Underwood Standard typewriter used.

I am a graduate of one of the best shorthand schools in Pittsburg and have had five years experience, three years in legal work and two in commercial. Students desiring to take up this study can do just as well for the first two or three months at home, as going away and with much less expense.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

ANDRUS.

The funeral of John W. Andrus, whose tragic death in a train wreck near Wilcox, Friday, June 16th, brought grief to so many hearts, occurred from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Andrus at Beechwood, last Sunday afternoon. The Rev. O. S. Metzler conducted the service in the presence of a large and sympathetic company of people. Though not a church member, his life was singularly upright in the traits of sobriety, love and obedience to his parents, and in the consciencious regard for God's law, which it ever exemplified. When the accident to the train on which he was a fireman was imminent, the opportunity to escape was not taken advantage of until his fellow trainmen had leaped from the engine The. beautiful spirit of heroism and sacrifice thus displayed cost him his life, for when it was his turn, in jumping from the locomotive, he was caught under the wreckage and material, for a harrowing tragedy was at hand.

The grief of his father and mother, whose chief support he was, is very great and the sympathy of the community is stirred to an unusual degree in their behalf.

Surviving him are a father and mother, five brothers and three sisters. He was 21 years and nine months old.

FETTER.

JAMES R. FETTER, aged 45 years, died at his family residence in Emporium, last Friday, after a long and painful illness Mr. Fetter returned from Buffalo Hospital on June 10th and it was evident he had only a few days to live. All that a loving wife, and hosts of friends, could do to relieve his suffering and pain were gently administered. Mr. Fetter came to Emporium in 1868 with his parents and has resided here ever since, having engaged in business. He was an industrious, good citizen, always taking a lively interest in whatever he was engaged. Careful and economical, he accumulated considerable property. He leaves a wife and one child, a son; mother (Mrs. P. R. Beattie), two brothers, (A. C. Renovo, and John W., Canada,) and two sisters, (Mrs. Dan'l Kriner and Mrs. Ed. Morse), to mourn his death and remember the many beautiful examples he left as a monument to an upright life. Honesty, faithfulness, charity and love of family.

Mr. Fetter was born at Farrandsville, Pa., June 6th, 1861, was married July 3rd, 1889 to Miss Henrietta Morse, of Cameron, Pa.

Fraternally James R. Fetter was closely identified with Emporium Odd Fellowship, having joined Emporium Lodge, No. 984, in 1887, when he was in his 27th year. From that day, Nov. 17th, 1887, he has been active and faithful in both branches of the order, in fact the life of Odd Fellowship in Emporium has, in a great measure, depended more than once upon his worx and watchfulness He passed all the chairs in both Encampment and Lodge, was a member of the Grand Lodge and at the time of his death was Past Chief Patriarch and Past Noble Grand. Therefore, it was eminently right and proper that he should be burried with the highest honors.

Mr. Fetter was also a prominent member of Patriotic Order Sons of America and practiced and loved the principles of the order. His casket was draped with a beautiful silk flag.

Brother Fetter was a member of the Modern Woodmen of America and carried an insurance policy for $3,000.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral took place from the family resideuce on Fourth street last Sunday afternoon and was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Robertson, Rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, assisted by Rev. Robt. McCaslin, Pastor of First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. L. B. Twitchell, Pastor of First Baptist Church. Rev. Mr. Robertson's remarks, very appropriate to the occasion, we are pleased to publish in part, viz:

"We mourn to day the departure of one whom we have known long and well, and for whose memory we cherish a deep and sincere respect. He showed that it is possible for a noble spirit to adorn the quiet walks of life. A dutiful son, a helpful brother, a devoted and faithful husband, an affectionate and wise father, he stands forth in our thoughts as a representative of sterling domestic virtue. In these days when the sanctity of the home is despised by so many and the sacred ties of the family are so often rent recklessly asunder; it is a cause of rejoicing and a source of inspiration to see the most sacred of earth's ties so purely and faithfully cherished as it has been between the departed and his bereaved partner.

He was a model of honest industry, manly and independent in spirit, generous and unselfish, a man of high-minded principles which he maintained with quiet but firm stedfastness. Just and kindly he was in spirit, in principle, and in deed. Uncomplaining and patient in suffering, desiring to live for those he loved and for the work which in the natural course of life he might yet have accomplished, he made a hard and protracted, though unavailing, struggle against our last great common enemy. His virtuous character was grouded in religious principle; his manly, brave, just spirit was sustained in life and in death by a real though unobtrusive faith in the divine."

At the grave both clergymen conducted the services, jointly.

After the clergymen had concluded their services, the Odd Fellows conducted their beautiful and impressive burial services according to the Ritual The services were in charge of Noble Grand Lewis M Ginter and Chaplain Chas. A. VanLew. After these officers had concluded their work each Odd Fellow deposited a sprig of evergreen upon the casket of their departed brother, when his remains were carefully lowered into the vault to await the resurrection morn. About 75 members of the beloved order of which the deceased took pride in laboring for, headed the funeral column, in full regalia, an honor never before bestowed upon a deceased brother.

A mixed choir, composed of Messrs. Chas. Felt, H. C. Olmsted, Geo. A. Walker, Jr., and Fred Heilman, sang several appropriate hymns.

RELATIVES AND FRIENDS IN ATTENDANCE

The following relatives and friends from out of town were in attendance at the funeral:

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fetter, and daughter, Miss Lizzie, Renovo; Mrs. Rena Mann, and Miss Mann, Lebanon; Mr. and Mrs. Dan'l Kriner and son, Whittimore Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. K. Robbins, Williamsport; Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Robbins and son, Westport; Mrs. Gilbert Morse, St. Marys; Mrs. W. H. Morse, Cameron; Miss Blanch Morse, Sinnamahoning; and others, whose names we could not learn.

THE FLORAL OFFERINGS.

The floral offerings from family, friends and fraternal organizations were beautiful and in great numberst speaking in loud praise of the respec, in which the deceased was held. The set pieces "Pillow of Pansies" from family and "Odd Fellow Emblem" especially deserve mention.

Serious Wreck.

Johnsonburg Press, June 16th.

One of the worst wrecks on the P. & E. division happened this morning at about 5:45, a short distance this side of Wilcox, first class freight No. 80, east bound, collided with train No. 97, first section, going west.

The killed and injured are as follows:

FIREMAN ANDREWS, Beechwood, of train 97, jumped from train and was caught under roof of car. Burned and was dead when taken from the wreck. Was taken to the undertaking rooms of John Amend, Wilcox.

GEO. RILEY, Renovo, fireman on train 80, badly scalded and burned, taken to Kane.

ENGINEER HOLIDAY, Renovo, of train 80, injured in jumping from train, taken to Kane.

ENGINEER WEIDERT, Renovo, train 97, escaped by jumping, injured on shoulder and bruised, taken to Kane.

CONDUCTOR PIERCE, train 97, slightly injured.

CONDUCTOR MYERS, train 80, slightly injured.

Train 12 from Kane, was turned around and run back to Kane with the injured men on board.

The cause of the wreck is not exactly understood, but it is explained that both trains being first class were supposed to pass at Tambine, but one of the engineers was slightly behind time. The trains met on a straight track, and the impact was terrific.

About 15 cars were piled up into a promiscuous heap, which had become almost a roaring furnace, and drove back the rescuing party that was searching for any of the luckless trainmen that might be imprisoned in the wreck. On train 80 there was a tank of oil which was thrown forward over the cars and immediately took fire from the wrecked locomotives and the flames consumed the entire wreckage The Renovo fire engine was taken up to put out the fire and cool the wreck in order that the debris could be cleared away.

Reform from Within the Party.

All good citizens are working to the same end—the regeneration of Philadelphia. That being the case, why should a committee of representative citizens, such as the one headed by Mr. Darlington be made the subject of wrath on the part of other gentlemen and the targets of the mud-slinging portion of the press? The Inquirer cannot sink to the gutter level of sandbagging sensational journalism and bandy epithets with it. This is a time for argument among those who have only the interests of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania at heart. It is the quiet thought of the citizen that tells, not vicious onslaughts upon men of known integrity who honestly and sincerely advance a method to secure lasting reforms.

The Committee of Seventy, the Committee of Nine, both have an undoubted right to argue over the situation. Have not the members of the Darlington conference the same right? The Committee of Nine seems to have the idea that the way to bring reform is to smash everything that bears the name of Republican, thus punishing the entire party. On the other hand, the Darlington committee seeks to eliminate all that is undesirable in the party and leave the party itself in a condition of absolute integrity. That is the difference, and it is for the people to decide what their course shall be.

The Committee of Nine is in the position of a doctor called to prescribe for a patient, the patient in this case being the Republican party. It has no remedy. It cooly condemns the patient to death. That is not the treatment that Dr. Darlington prescribes. He thinks that the great Republican party is worth saving, therefore he would cut out the cancer—eradicate the evil—and purge of all impurities, leaving the patient strong and healthy once more.

There is no differences of opinion as to the necessity for reform. There is no quarrel over that. Where the difference comes in is just here:

The opponents of the Darlington committee want to hit a Republican head wherever they see one, and aim at the complete overthrow of the party in city and state.

The Darlington conferees, on the other hand, see no reason why the great Republican party, which is no corrupt, should be slaughtered, and insist that it as a party is in no wise at fault. This is no movement in behalf of an organization. Indeed, it is aimed at the organization, and seeks to cut the party loose from the organization so that it may go on its own way free from stain or suspicion.

We cannot see why the Darlington plan is not most praisworthy in every way. It is.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

NICKLER—SEELEY.

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock, June 16th, at the home of the bride's father, Adam Nickler, Claude E. Seely and Mary A. Nickler, were married, Rev. Robert McCaslin, officiating. The groomsman and bridesmaid were the bride's brother and sister, Adam, Jr., and Maggie Nickler. The wedding was a quite affair, but in every way, happy and pleasant. No tin pans, old bells, horsefiddles, etc, intruded on the occasion to mar the quiet pleasure and genuine happiness of the married pair and the family and the two or three favored guests. Mr. and Mrs. Seely, we believe, drove to Sizerville on Saturday morning and escaped the usual treat to old shoes, rice, and etc., that friends are so often fond of giving. After a visit among relatives and a pleasant tour, they will make their abode in Emporium, occupying rooms already furnished and fitted up by them on Allegheny Avenue. They are both highly esteemed by all who know them, and many congratulations and good wishes are extended to them.

A Million for G. A. R.

PITTSBURG, JUNE 19.—"One million dollars is too little to spend on the old soldiers Let them have the right kind of a memorial hall, one costing not less than $2,500,000. I'll do my share."

This is what H. C. Frick told a delegation from the Pittsburg G. A. R., which called on him some days ago to ask for a donation to the one-million-dollar memorial hall which it is intended to erect at some point in Pittsburg. The story leaked out only yesterday, and it is understood that Mr. Frick explained that by his share he meant $1,000,000.

"I want to see a hall erected of which we will be proud in years to come; as proud as we are of the old soldiers who went forth and saved our country," said Mr. Frick, as he sent the bewildered committee back to their comrades.

WEATHER REPORT

FRIDAY, Fair.

The Observer.

A few days ago the new Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia put a stop to a scheme which one of the churches in the city had well under way to raise funds by chancing off a dwelling. Public sentiment, as reflected in communications to the public prints, is divided on the question as whether this action was called for; but the weight of opinion seems to uphold the Director in his course. The Observer is decidedly of the opinion that the Director did the right thing, and he ventures to think that the attention that is now being centered upon an objectionable practice, will result in putting a final end to it.

The Director is right in declaring that the selling of chances for the benefit of a church is a plain lottery, and is quite as much under the ban of the law as is any other form of lottery. From a moral point of view a church lottery is worse than other lotteries, inasmuch as a church is expected to stand for the highest standards of morality. As a rule the highest moral sentiments of a people are in advance of legislation, and it therefore puts a church in an unfavorable moral light when, instead of standing for principles which are in advance of legislation, it lags behind legislation and indulges in practices which are a violation of law.

A century or two ago a lottery was looked upon by the highest moralists as an honorable and perfectly legitimate method of raising funds. Colleges were endowed and churches maintained by funds raised in this manner In Independence Hall may be seen a lottery ticket issued in the early half of the eighteenth century by the vestry of old Christ Church for the benefit of that venerable parish.

Those who believe that the world is not getting any better find it difficult to explain how it has come to pass that the moral standards of civilized people have improved so much within a century or two. Two centuries ago or less it was considered no disgrace for even a pillar of the church to lie in a drunken stupor under the table. Gambling and lotteries were not only tolerated, but approved. War excited not one tenth the horror that it does to-day The moral standards of civilized people are being heightened, and in this we see cheering and conclusive evidence that the world is getting better.

A lottery appeals to one of the lowest as well as one of the strongest instincts of human nature, the desire to get something for nothing. A lottery is a gambling scheme pure and simple, and as such it is worse than betting. Betting may, and often does, degenerate into gambling, but betting proper has this to be said for it, that it is a primitive expression and proof of one's confidence in his own judgment and veracity. The instinct to wager, says Sir Henry Maine in his great work, "Ancient Law," is one of the oldest and most deeply seated in human nature. The wager, like the oath, still fulfills a serious and useful function in human affairs. One who goes bail or bond for another is really staking the amount of the forfeit upon the soundness of his own judgment that the prisoner will appear when called for trial, or that the contract will be fulfilled as specified. But the wager, like the oath, may be used in a profane and vulgar way. The man who cannot argue without offering to back up his contention with a stake of money is near of kin to the man who thinks to add strength to his statements by backing them up with aoths. Profane betting, like profane swearing, is odious and disgusting.

But gambling—and a church lottery is gambling—has not even the semblance of justification that attaches to betting. The bettor, as distinct from the gambler, feels sure of something, so sure that he is willing to stake money upon it. The gambler as such is sure of nothing; he stakes his money upon mere chance. If his venture represented knowledge, intelligence, or sound judgment, something might be said for it; but it represents none of these,

A church would better stick to its proper function, which is to help men to govern their lives according to divine reason and principle, and not encourage a habit of mind, already too common among men of sceptical and cynical tendency, that sees in the events and affairs of life nothing but the rule of chance and fate.

Cloudburst.

A cloud burst occurred Tuesday evening about 6:30 p. m, between Keating Station and Renovo, causing several bad land slides and completely crippling the telegraph service. Trains No. 4 and 14 were run via the New York Central from Keating. No. 7, the Buffalo Flyer, due at Emporium at 4 a. m., reached here about three hours late and No. 9, the Erie Express, was about one hour behind her. The St. Marys work train, in charge of Supervisor Lehman, hurried to the scene of the trouble, picking up all the section gangs on the way. Supervisor McDonald did the same from Driftwood East. One track is clear at this writing so trains can be moved carefully from Cooks Run to Renovo.

The Empress Dowager of China is feeling the weight of her years and is anxious to have her last resting place made ready before she is "invited to become a guest of heaven." The Shanghai North China Herald says that something like $5,000,000 has already been spent on the proposed mausoleum, west of Peking, designated "the happy land of a myriad years."

The earl of Derby said at the meeting of the British Association for the Prevention of Consumption that light and air would do more good to the sufferer from tuberculosis than any medical treatment. Experience has shown in this country that the open-air treatment has produced the most gratifying results. The experiment has been tried in many states and with good results.

The cathedral of the Holy Savior in Moscow is probably the most magnificent church in the world. Its five cupolas are covered with pure gold one-eighth inch in thickness. Its internal decorations are magnificent and very costly. This church is the nation's thank-offering for the deliverance of Moscow from the French. It took 50 years to build, and its cost has been estimated at £10,000,000 sterling.

Nan Patterson, the actress, found that her notoriety gained in her trials for the alleged murder of Caesar Young in New York was unfavorable to her. She was engaged by a theatrical firm at a salary of $200 a week to reappear on the stage. She was greeted by small audiences in her tour through Pennsylvania and quit in disgust and in tears at Altoona, Pa., her first week. She has returned to her parents in Washington.

Memorial day this year came under widely different conditions from those which prevailed at all previous recurrences of the holiday. The restoration of all the battle-flags captured from the confederacy during the civil war has brought out expressions of warm appreciation from all parts of the South. The bill which ordered the restoration was introduced by a republican, passed each branch of the congress by a unanimous vote, and was promptly and cheerfully signed by President Roosevelt.

Germany, in common with most other European nations is carrying out the policy of promoting peace by preparing for war by making large increases in both her military and naval establishments. Under the provisions of the new army bill the strength of the German army on a peace footing will be increased until it reaches the number of 505,839 in 1909. This involves an addition of nearly ten thousand men, excluding, apparently, officers and non-commissioned officers, and one-year volunteers.

The dome of St. Isaac's cathedral in St. Petersburg is the most conspicuous object in the city. It is covered with copper, overlaid with pure gold; no less than £50,000 worth of gold being melted down for the purpose. Entering the cathedral by the magnificent bronze doors, 44 feet wide and 30 feet high, said to be the largest in the world, the visitor is overwhelmed by its richness and massive splendor. The dome of the shrine is supported by eight Corinthian pillars of malachite, given by Prince Demidoff, and valued at £200,000.

The robes of the Russian clergy are the richest in the world. In the house of the Holy synod, inside the Kremlin, may be seen vestments of fabulous value. One is embellished with the Nicene creed embroidered in pearls. There are no fewer than seven mitres studded with diamonds, rubies and emeralds, also golden croziers of rare workmanship. The boundless wealth, gorgeous decorations and endless magnificence of the churches are in strange contrast to the poverty-stricken, unkempt peasants who throng the churches at all hours of the day.

In a bulletin, issued by the department of commerce and labor on the subject of marketing goods in Central America and the West Indies, emphasis is laid on the fact that there are few, if any, American credit agencies in those parts. This puts American exporters at a disadvantage. English, German and French exporters have bank connections throughout Central America and the West Indies, and by their knowledge of the financial ability of merchants are able to offer better terms than Americans, who must insist on cash payments or short credit.

OCEAN MARINE HARD-SHELL.

Something Which Free Traders Are Respectfully Invited to Crack.

American free traders unhesitatingly assert that protection is the only obstacle to the creation by the citizens of the United States of an ocean marine. They are never very clear as to the mode in which the policy works to prevent such a consummation, but they usually leave it to be inferred that it is the high price of the raw materials used in shipbuilding which makes it impossible for us to "butt into" the oversea carrying trade. That this is not the real obstacle is easily demonstrated, says the San Francisco Chronicle. If high-priced raw materials were a hindrance to the development of a great, cheap and efficient transportation system, the United States would not have, as it admittedly has, the best and most economical railway service in the world.

In 1903 there were 207,604 miles of railway operated in this country. The rails and other steel used in their equipment were almost wholly produced in the United States, the iron and steel imported in the early days before we had built up a great rolling industry having long since rusted and rotted. During the time we were importing, however, the free traders were unceasing in their denunciation of a policy which they declared impeded railroad development. They were too short-sighted to see that the erection of rolling mills and the creation of a great steel and iron industry were helping to build up the country, thus furnishing business to the railroads and assisting in bringing about that prosperous condition which alone can materially promote development.

Here is a statistical account of the results produced by the alleged impediments offered by protection to our railway development. There were 207,604 miles of railway in 1903, employing 1,309,640 people in all departments, whose combined wages and salaries in the year mentioned amounted to $775,000,000. In one form and another the stupendous sum of $13,525,623,300 is invested in these railways, and their gross earnings in 1903 footed up $1,908,857,826. The vast traffic of the roads required 1,634,332 freight and 28,648 passenger cars, and they carried 696,908,994 passengers one mile and 171,290,310,685 tons of freight were moved one mile. But the greatest achievement of all was the reduction under the protective system of the average cost of moving a ton of freight one mile from 1.99 cents in 1870 to .74 of a cent in 1903.

In the face of such an outcome it is manifestly absurd to say that protection has been a hindrance to transportation development on land. Under its beneficent workings a railway system has been created in this country which has a carrying capacity greater than that of all the ships of the world, and which moves more freight than the latter, and does it more cheaply than the railways of free-trade England perform a like service for the people of that country. It is equally absurd to charge that the high price of raw materials and protection generally are responsible for the failure to develop an American oversea carrying trade. The failure is due to the opposite cause. The refusal to protect American shipping against the competition of Lascar labor at three dollars a month, and the almost equally cheap labor of northern Europe explains why we are not "in it" on the ocean. When we recognize this fact we shall see the American flag flying in all the ports of the world, and later the cost of freighting on the ocean will, through American methods and ingenuity, be cheapened as it has been on the land. If we can improve our railways under protection so as to make them beat those of the rest of the world, what is to hinder us from making an American shipping system equally effective?

Literature in Alaska.

A member of a government party which journeyed through Alaska during the Tanana rush was horrified at the lack of entertainment and good literature available for the miners. "Doesn't it get dull here?" he asked of an old prospector at Fairbanks. "What do you do for amusement?" "Do?" echoed the gray-haired prospector, gravely. "Do? Why, bless you, we have very genteel amusements. As for readin' an' literature an' all that, why, when the fust grub comes in the spring we have a meetin' an' call all the boys together an' app'int a chairman, an' then some one reads the directions on the labels of the bakin' powder cans."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Protective Tariff Results.

Without a protective tariff it would have been utterly impossible for the silk industry of this country to have made the rapid progress it has, and by the same method the wages of the operatives in the silk mills of the United States have been maintained at a much higher standard than prevails anywhere else. The rise of the silk industry as a result of our protective tariff system is not a theory, but an actual fact. It is one of the numerous lines of industry which has grown and prospered under our tariff system and is a living witness against free-trade fallacies.—Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph.

☞The Ohio republican platform puts the case squarely: "We affirm unequivocally the republican state and national platforms of 1904. We stand by the principles of protection to American labor and American industries." There is nothing between the lines. The expression is that of the stalwart republicanism that has been winning with these people and building up the nation into unexampled greatness for 50 years.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞A look over the field at this juncture shows that there are nearly, if not quite, 57 varieties of democrats.—Chicago Chronicle.

WRONG AND AN INJUSTICE.

Such Would Be the Purchase of Panama Supplies in Foreign Markets.

Would a member of Abraham Lincoln's cabinet have adopted a policy of buying in the cheapest market? or a member of Thomas Jefferson's cabinet? These two men, says the American Economist, are held by Theodore Roosevelt as the highest examples and ideals of American statesmanship. It was Jefferson who said:

"My own idea is that we should encourage home manufactures to the extent of our own consumption of everything of which we raise the raw material."

It was Lincoln who said:

"If my wife buys a dress in England for $20 we have the dress and England has the $20. If she buys that dress in the United States we have both the dress and the $20."

What a howl we republicans and protectionists made when Cleveland's secretary of war bought army blankets abroad.

So much for sentiment. How about the business side of Secretary Taft's policy of buying all supplies for the Isthmian canal in the cheapest market?

Why are we exporting and selling $500,000,000 worth of manufactures abroad annually? Not because, as a rule, we are selling cheaper, but because we sell better goods than can be bought in European markets. Foreigners have learned that the best goods are in the end the cheapest. And now we are to ignore this very principle that has made us the largest exporting nation? If English and continental goods are not good enough for Europeans, are they good enough for us? It's a pretty serious responsibility for Mr. Taft to assume, this buying of cheap foreign goods and disregarding the well made wares of his own countrymen. If the well made American shovel, which costs $1.20, outlasts two of the cheaply made 75-cent shovels made abroad, where is the saving in buying the foreign made article? And so on through the list.

So much for the business view.

It is our money that is going to build the canal. Shall we spend it among our own laborers, or give it to foreign workmen? Suppose we do use a few more millions by buying at home. When the supplies are used up we would still have the money and every laborer in the country, every farmer and every professional man would benefit directly or indirectly. If spent abroad we shall soon have neither the supplies nor the money.

It would be an economical, a business and a sentimental injustice and wrong to buy anything abroad for the building of the isthmian canal which can be bought at home. It would throw the administration and the republican party into derision and contempt.

ONLY A SAMPLE CASE.

Development of the Silk Industry the Result of a Protective Tariff.

A free-trade newspaper publishes a statement showing the "marvelous development of the silk industry" during the past 45 years. The statement includes these facts and figures:

"In 1860 only 13 per cent. of the silk used here was home manufactured. This percentage had increased to 38 in 1880, and to 55 in 1890, and to 70 in 1900. In 1900 there were 483 silk manufacturing plants in the United States, with an aggregate capital of $81,000,000, employing 65,500 hands and paying them $21,000,000 a year in wages. The importations of silk are rapidly declining. American mills supply most of the American demand and are competing with France and other foreign countries for the trade of the world."

All of which is strictly true, says the Troy Times. And it is also true that this "marvelous development" has occurred wholly under protection, originating with that granted by the law passed in 1861, when the republicans first had the opportunity to enact such a measure, and continued through the various tariff acts since passed, with the single exception of the democratic Wilson-Gorman bill of 1894, which reduced duties all along the line. A nation once wholly dependent on other countries for its silks and satins is now not only meeting all its own requirements in this line, but is underselling in the markets of the world competitors who have been in the business for centuries. That is the story of a single American industry fostered by protection. The tale could be told, varying only in detail, as to very many others. And still the free-traders try to fool the American people into the belief that protection is a handicap on prosperity.

☞A tariff war with Germany is threatened. The accepted method of conducting a tariff war is for each combatant to built a lot of war vessels and keep them at home.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

☞If Mr. Bryan attempts to lead the democratic party "back to the people" he will be going in the wrong direction. He must lead the party forward, not backward, if he wants to make connection.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞Col. Bryan announces his intention of taking a trip around the world for the purpose of studying municipal problems. The announcement is somewhat startling, as it conveys an admission that there is a subject in the world that Col. Bryan does not know all about.—Washington Post.

☞Why is not a tariff that dissipated business adversity and business stagnation and brought a condition of extraordinary prosperity just the tariff to maintain that condition and just the tariff to hold on to without change so long as that condition lasts?—American Economist.

SAYS HE BRIBED LABOR LEADERS

An Agent of Chicago Teaming Interests Tells of Paying to Prevent Strikes.

CLAIMS HE ACTED IN 400 CASES

John C. Driscoll States that in Two Years He Paid About $50,000 to Union Officials, the Sums Ranging from $100 Upward.

Chicago, June 14.—John C. Driscoll, former secretary of the associated teaming interests of Chicago, announced yesterday that he would go before the grand jury and give testimony supported by documentary evidence to show that in two years while holding the office of secretary of the associated teaming interests he settled more than 400 strikes by the use of money with labor officials. These strikes, Mr. Driscoll asserts, affected almost every branch of industry in Chicago. He takes the position that he acted merely in the capacity of an expert who was in a position to bring about the result that the employers sought, namely, a peaceable adjustment.

Driscoll's method, according to his own account, was this: An employer or an organization of employers who were affected by a strike, would call and ask him to use his influence to bring about an adjustment of trouble and, except for the organization by whom he was employed as secretary, he always refused a fee for his efforts. The fees paid the union men ranged from $100 to thousands of dollars, the aggregate probably amounting to $50,000. Not one penny was ever passed through Driscoll's hands to bring about a strike, according to his own assertion.

"I will prove that this is absolutely true," said Mr. Driscoll, "by the evidence that I have on hand. The charges that I have been a 'grafter,' that I have paid money to bring about strikes, that I conspired with union officials to levy blackmail on employers under threat of strikes are all made of whole cloth. I am tired of being abused by these charges. I want every business man that I have ever had dealings with to go before the grand jury and tell just exactly what I did for them, what my fee was and whether or not I 'delivered the goods.' I consider that it is absolutely legitimate to act in the capacity of labor commissioner and I think that in that capacity I have done vastly more good than harm. Many of the strikes that I settled were fixed in their incipiency and my efforts prevented perhaps serious industrial complications such as the present strike controversy."

FELL INTO A RAVINE.

Three People Killed and 29 Injured in the Wreck of a Passenger Train Near Golden Gate, Ill.

Albion, Ill., June 14.—Three persons were killed and 29 injured in the wreck of an eastbound passenger train on the Southern railway at Golden Gate, Ill., Tuesday. The train was a "Cotton Special" carrying Confederate veterans to the reunion at Louisville, Ky. While running at a speed of 50 miles an hour the engine struck a spread rail on a trestle 20 feet high and the engine and four coaches were overturned and fell to the bottom of the ravine. The engine turned completely over. The dead are:

J. J. Uhls, Greenway, Ark.

J. D. Johnson, fireman, Princeton, Ind.

Otto Graetz, engineer, Princeton, Ind.

Gen. James Jordan, of Pine Bluff, Ark., who was seriously injured, was in charge of the Second Arkansas brigade. The train consisted of three Pullmans and four coaches. Two of the sleepers were derailed, but did not go over the trestle. The third sleeper remained on the track.

HUNTED DOWN.

Three Men Accused of Altering and Forging Postal Money Orders Are Arrested in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, June 14.—Three important arrests were made here last evening by Postoffice Inspectors F. A. O'Brien, Robert Gibbons and W. A. Brown, assisted by local Detective Cecil G. Rice. The men arrested gave their names as John M. Reed, John Whitney and James Stewart, all claiming New York City as their homes. The charge against the men is altering, raising and forging postal money orders. The officials say that the prisoners have operated in every part of the United States and that the department has been trying to run them down for over a year.

They are said to be the smoothest and most dangerous of their kind in the country. The method of the trio has been to secure a money order for 25 cents and with the aid of chemicals raise it to $75 or $100. Then taking the raised order to a merchant they would purchase some article and get change.

Steamship Burned.

Huron, Mich., June 14.—The steamer Yakima, owned by the Gilchrist Transportation Co., of Cleveland, which had been aground in the St. Clair river below this city since Saturday, caught fire Monday night and was practically destroyed.

Policemen Broke Up a Prize Fight.

New York, June 14.—Half a dozen policemen armed with revolvers which they did not hesitate to use, broke up a prize fight on the outskirts of New Rochelle yesterday and captured 36 prisoners.

TO IMPROVE THE SERVICE.

President Roosevelt Appoints a Committee to Point Where Reforms in Government Business Methods Should be Made.

Washington, June 17.—The president has appointed a committee of five to report to him on improved methods of doing the public business in the various departments.

The character of the work expected of the committee is indicated in the following letter addressed to Charles H. Keep, assistant secretary of the treasury, by President Roosevelt:

"You are hereby designated as chairman of a committee, to consist in addition to yourself of the following four gentlemen: Frank H. Hitchcock, first assistant postmaster general; Lawrence O. Murray, assistant secretary of commerce and labor; James R. Garfield, commissioner of corporations, and Gifford Pinchot, of the agricultural department, who are to investigate and find out what changes are needed to place the conduct of the executive business of the government in all its branches on the most economical and effective basis in the light of the best modern business practice. In making this investigation I would like you to have in view securing an improvement in business methods, particularly among the following:

"Salaries should be commensurate with the character and market value of the service performed, and uniform for similar service in all departments.

"Government supplies, except such as are required to meet emergencies or for immediate use in the field, should be standardized and purchased through a central purchasing office.

"As between the adoption of a uniform standard and the actual efficiency of any office, the former must yield.

BUSINESS BULLETIN.

Moderate Improvement Is Reported by Dun's Review.

New York, June 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Moderate improvement is noted in commercial conditions, although progress is along conservative lines and there is no evidence of speculative excess. Seasonable weather has stimulated retail sales of light weight wearing apparel, and jobbers report more disposition among dealers to place orders for fall and winter goods. Mercantile payments are also more prompt, the brighter crop outlook having a salutary effect on all commercial operations.

Although little new business is noted in pig iron, the steel mills are busy and confidence is expressed in developments next month. Textile manufacturing is in better condition than at any recent date, high prices for raw material exerting no retarding influence as yet, and most of the idleness in the leading industries is attributed to seasonable overhauling of machinery and taking of inventories.

Failures this week numbered 229 in the United States, against 257 last year, and 25 in Canada, compared with 16 a year ago.

ON MANCHURIA'S PLAINS.

Linevitch and Oyama Will Probably Meet and Sign an Armistice.

Washington, June 17.—Alone on the plans of Manchuria, midway between the two great armies, the Russian and Japanese commanders will meet to sign the armistice which will pave the way for the Washington conference if the present tentative program is followed. Exchanges on this point are now in progress between Tokio and St. Petersburg, via Washington, but no final conclusion has been reached.

It was first thought a preliminary protocol might be signed at Washington providing for a temporary cessation of hostilities, but in view of the fact that this concerns directly the armies in the field, it is believed that the belligerents will agree that arrangements of the armistice may be best entrusted to Linevitch and Oyama, the respective commanders-in-chief, who in such event would be telegraphed special powers to sign. The time limit for the armistice has not been fixed, but it will be comparatively brief.

UNDER A RAFT.

The Bodies of a Woman and a Child Found in the Monongahela River.

Pittsburg, June 17.—A pitiful tragedy, it is believed, lies back of the discovery of two bodies, presumably those of a mother and her child, in the Monongahela river at McKeesport last evening. Rivermen were preparing to land a raft of logs when they caught sight of two human bodies under the raft. On attempting to bring the bodies from the water it was discovered that they were caught on one of the logs of the raft. After detaching the bodies with some difficulty they were brought to the surface. Tied tightly about the waists of the woman and the child was a bed sheet which had been twisted into a rope. The raft had been brought from Herr's Island Thursday. At what point the bodies had become fastened to the log is not known.

The belief generally held by the authorities is that the woman tied the sheet about herself and her daughter and that the two then plunged into the water, to die together.

Leases are Subject to Taxation.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 17.—In a decision handed down Friday by the supreme court of West Virginia, the ruling of State Tax Commissioner Dillon that oil, gas and coal leases are subject to state taxation is sustained, and will bring upon the tax books $400,000,000 of valuation and several million dollars annual revenue.

VETERANS WHO WORE THE GRAY

They Are Holding Their Fifteenth Annual Reunion at Louisville, Ky.

GEN. STEPHEN D. LEE PRESIDES

Gen. Joe Wheeler, Gen. Buckner and Other Leaders of the Confederate Armies Are Given Enthusiastic Receptions by Their Comrades.

Louisville, Ky., June 15.—Louisville yesterday welcomed the thousands who have come to attend the fifteenth annual convention of the United Confederate Veterans. The attendance exceeds expectations.

Preparations for the accommodation of the old soldiers have been made on a lavish scale. At several points in the city barracks have been provided and a few steps away from each is the restaurant which 24 hours out of the day serves free meals to the wearers of the gray.

Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, commanding the Kentucky division, called the vast assemblage of veterans to order Wednesday afternoon in the horse show building. The invocation was by Chaplain General William Jones. The chaplain asked that the blessing of God descend on the president of the United States, that he might be the president of this whole country and of every section. After A. E. Richards had welcomed the visitors to Louisville, Gov. Beckham extended the hospitality of the state.

Gen. Buckner welcomed the veterans on behalf of the Confederates in the state at large. The venerable soldier and statesman was given "three cheers and a tiger." Gen. Young was about to introduce Gen. Stephen D. Lee, the commander-in-chief, when Gen. Joe Wheeler, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Carrie Peyton Wheeler, the sponsor for the south, and her maid of honor were seen making their way to the stage. The chairman lost control of the convention and the veterans cheered themselves hoarse over the sight of their famous leader. Gen. Wheeler acknowledged the greeting in a brief speech.

A rousing reception was given the commander-in-chief, Gen. Lee, when he arose to respond for the veterans to the addresses of welcome. The general's speech was interrupted many times by cheers. Cheers were given the few remaining great figures of the Confederacy as they made their appearance.

Louisville, Ky., June 16.—Gen. Stephen D. Lee was yesterday unanimously re-elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans. The next convention will be held in New Orleans.

A LEAF FROM TOGO'S BOOK.

It Will be Utilized by the Men of Our Navy in the Placing of Range Finders on Battleships.

New York, June 15.—Orders were received at the New York navy yard yesterday from the navy department at Washington to remove the guns from the fighting tops of the battleship Alabama. Orders have been issued also that the guns are not to be replaced on the fighting tops of the battleship Indiana, which is being repaired. It is reported that the guns are to be replaced by range finders and that similar orders are to be issued regarding other battleships. The victory of Admiral Togo in the battle of the Sea of Japan is said to have influenced the decision to put range finders in place of the one-pounders which have occupied the tops.

The fate of the battle was decided by the superiority of the work of the Japanese gunners, while the ships were still at long range. The department was informed that the aim of the Japanese gunners was due to the efficiency of the men with the range finders whom the Japanese had placed in the fighting tops and were thus able to "pick up" the Russian ships at a far greater distance than the Russians could locate the Japanese.

Washington, June 15.—For some time past the navy department has had under consideration the expediency of installing range finders in the fighting tops of war vessels in place of the one-pound guns which have occupied places there. There is a two-fold purpose in this change. It will give the officers in charge of the range finders a more comprehensive view of the horizon and the possibility of locating an enemy than is now afforded, and also will enable them to control the batteries with better results than at present.

A Multi-Millionaire Dies.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 15.—Lawrence Myers died at his home yesterday, aged 86 years. Mr. Myers had been in the banking and real estate business here for 50 years, amassing an enormous fortune. He was one of Wilkesbarre's millionaires and owned over 200 properties in this city alone. His coal lands are estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

Two People Killed by a Train.

Middletown, N. Y., June 15.—An automobile occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Sayer, of Englewood, N. J., and their two sons was struck by a train at Goshen yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Sayer were instantly killed and their sons were hurled several feet.

WASHINGTON IS THE PLACE

Russia and Japan Agree Upon It as the Meeting Point for the Peace Negotiators.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT IS OFFICIAL

Should the Weather be Uncomfortably Warm in Washington the Meeting May be Adjourned to Some Summer Resort in a Northern State.

Washington, June 16.—America's national capital has been selected as the seat of negotiations between the plenipotentiaries of Russia and Japan for a treaty of peace. The choice of Washington as the location of the peace conference marks another forward step in the negotiations toward ultimate peace in the far east instituted by President Roosevelt.

Official announcement of the selection of Washington was made by Secretary Loeb at the White House yesterday. It was in typewritten form and read as follows: "When the two governments were unable to agree upon either Che Foo or Paris, the president suggested The Hague, but both governments have now requested that Washington be chosen as the place of meeting and the president has accordingly formally notified both governments that Washington will be so selected."

This statement was supplemented afterward by a semi-official announcement that "after meeting and organizing the plenipotentiaries of the two governments, if it should be found to be uncomfortably hot in Washington, may adjourn the meeting to some summer resort in the north and there continue their sittings until such time as the weather in Washington be more comfortable."

Until yesterday Japan's irreconcilable opposition to the selection of any European capital was not known definitely. At a conference which the Japanese minister had with President Roosevelt he conveyed to the president the Japanese government's final refusal to consent to holding the conference in Europe.

The proposed conference is scarcely likely to be convened before the middle of August and, perhaps, not until a later date. It may be July 1, possibly a little later, before the arrangements for the meeting of the plenipotentiaries finally are completed.

SENSATIONAL EXPOSURES.

They Are Made as to the Connection of Philadelphia Politicians with Fat Contracts for City Work.

Philadelphia, June 16.—There were highly interesting developments Thursday in Mayor Weaver's crusade for good government. The fight against the trolley franchises is, for a moment, forgotten in the light of what developed at the hearing of Select Councilman Frank H. Caven, who is charged with violating his councilmanic oath by being interested in city contracts. During the hearing it was shown that Insurance Commissioner Israel W. Durham, the leader of the republican organization in this city, is a partner in the McNichol firm of city contractors.

It was also shown that while James P. McNichol, who is now a state senator and one of the local republican leaders, was in city councils the McNichol firm consisted of Durham, Mrs. James P. McNichol, John M. Mack and Daniel J. McNichol, a brother of James P. McNichol. It was also shown that after James P. McNichol left councils his wife withdrew from the firm. Her place was taken by himself.

Judge Gordon brought the proceedings to a close with a lengthy argument in which he arraigned "boodling" councilmen, scored the McNichols and promised startling developments in court. Caven was then held in $2,500 for court.

As a result of what developed at the hearing Mayor Weaver accepted the resignation of John W. Hill, chief engineer of the bureau of filtration, and also that of his son, Henry W. Hill, who was assistant to his father. The resignations were sent to the mayor to take effect June 30, but they were accepted to take effect immediately. Chief Hill was the highest salaried official in the city, his compensation being $17,000 a year. Simultaneous with the acceptance of the resignations all work on the city's filtration system was ordered stopped.

The office of Chief Hill was placed in charge of Assistant Director of Public Works Hicks and the city's offices at the filtration plants were put in charge of detectives, with instructions to permit no one to remove any records or other documents. While no official expression could be obtained as to the reasons for the resignation, it is learned from a high authority that Mayor Weaver was not satisfied with affairs connected with the construction of the filter plants.

The filtration system has cost the city about $22,000,000, and it will take upwards of $5,000,000 more to complete the work.

Rev. Locke Dies.

New York, June 16.—Rev. Dr. William H. Locke, former pastor of the Methodist church attended by the late President McKinley in Canton, O., died last night at the home of his son in Brooklyn, as the result of a stroke of apoplexy. The body will be taken to Pittsburg.

Alexis and Avellan Resign.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—Grand Duke Alexis, the high admiral, who is an uncle of the emperor, and Admiral Avellan, head of the Russian admiralty department, have resigned.

ONCE STRUCK KING EDWARD

Fiery Old Earl of Wemyss and His Interesting Record—An Eternal Prophet of Pessimism.

London.—One of the most remarkable men in the house of lords is the venerable earl of Wemyss, who caused no little amusement the other day by sitting down on his own silk tile at the conclusion of a fiery speech on the evils of Sunday trading. It recalled a more sensational performance in the same line when the earl crushed another hat—a hat that did not belong to him—and thereby acquired the distinction of being the only man who had ever struck his sovereign. It occurred during a debate in the house of lords when the earl was making a vehement harangue in favor of a militia ballot. The king—then the prince of Wales—chanced to be occupying a seat in front of him. Emphasizing one of his points with a magnificent gesture, the zealous peer brought his clenched fist down hard on the royal hat, bonneting his future ruler effectively. It was characteristic of the earl that he did not allow the untoward incident to disturb the thread of his discourse, postponing his apologies to a more convenient season. But his royal highness displayed great agility in getting out of range.

Though 86 years old last August, Lord Wemyss shows no signs of mental decrepitude. Tall, lean, willowy, burning with the fire of an unquenchable enthusiasm, gaunt and rugged in his oratory, his silvery locks flying wildly about his ears, the keen features sharpened by time and periodical conflict, he would pass in the kilt for some war-seamed Scottish chieftan, hero of a score of tales of border fray. He is a prophet of woe—a modern Jeremiah whose voice is filled with lamentations. Ever since he entered public life—and that was long before most of those now conspicuous in it were born—he has preached a doctrine of national pessimism. The times to him have been always out of joint, but he has never inveighed against the spite, however unblessed, which has caused his creation to set it right.

But his sincerity and patriotism cannot be disputed. No man has done more to foster the volunteer movement. It was 45 years ago that he first assumed command of a corps, and his gift, the Elcho challenge shield, still testifies to his practical interest in the body whose motto is "Defense, Not Defiance." He has the courage of his convictions at all times and is never bothered by considerations of consistency. He has proclaimed both communism and individualism. He once opposed the habitual inebriates bill in the house of lords on the ground that every Englishman ought to be allowed to get drunk when it pleased him to do so.

In his own person he furnishes the best refutation of his jeremiads on national decadence. Though he long ago passed the age when most men are supposed to have something more than one foot in the grave, he is still sound in wind and limb; is a keen sportsman, hunts, fishes and drives his own motor car, makes speeches full of fire and vigor whenever the spirit moves him, writes books and beguiles what leisure he has left at his favorite hobby—sculpture.

Maj. Carson, Veteran Washington Newspaper Man, to Head Bureau of Manufactures.

Washington. — President Roosevelt has offered the position as chief of the bureau of manufactures of the department of commerce and labor to Maj. John M. Carson, of Washington, correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger and New York Times. It is understood that he will accept the position, for which he possesses peculiar qualifications. The place pays $4,000 per annum.

Stevens, formerly a Washington correspondent, and now secretary of the Exposition company in St. Louis. Maj. Carson will succeed Mr. J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, who resigned recently.

NAMES BEST DOCTOR

MR. BAYSSON PUBLISHES RESULTS OF VALUABLE EXPERIENCE.

A Former Pronounced Dyspeptic He Now Rejoices in Perfect Freedom from Miseries of Indigestion.

Thousands of sufferers know that the reason why they are irritable and depressed and nervous and sleepless is because their food does not digest, but how to get rid of the difficulty is the puzzling question.

Good digestion calls for strong digestive organs, and strength comes from a supply of good rich blood. For this reason Mr. Baysson took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the cure of indigestion.

"They have been my best doctor," he says. "I was suffering from dyspepsia. The pains in my stomach after meals were almost unbearable. My sleep was very irregular and my complexion was sallow. As the result of using eight boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, about the merits of which I learned from friends in France, I have escaped all these troubles, and am able again to take pleasure in eating."

A very simple story, but if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills it might have been a tragic one. When discomfort begins with eating, fills up the intervals between meals with pain, and prevents sleep at night, there certainly cannot be much pleasure in living. A final general breaking down must be merely a question of time.

Mr. Joseph Baysson is a native of Aix-les-Bains, France, but now resides at No. 2439 Larkin street, San Francisco, Cal. He is one of a great number who can testify to the remarkable efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the treatment of obstinate disorders of the stomach.

If you would get rid of nausea, pain or burning in the stomach, vertigo, nervousness, insomnia, or any of the other miseries of a dyspeptic, get rid of the weakness of the digestive organs by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are sold by druggists everywhere.

Proper diet is, of course, a great aid in forwarding recovery once begun, and a little book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," may be obtained by any one who makes a request for it by writing to the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Schenectady, N.Y. This valuable diet book contains an important chapter on the simplest means for the cure of constipation.

Ancient Egypt

Knew the Virtues of the "King of Foods."

Since the earliest annals of Old Egypt, wheat has been recognized as the king of foods.

It has held its sway down to the present day, notwithstanding the fact that in many forms of making wheat into food products, some of the best elements are lost.

Bread has been aptly termed, "the staff of life," as it alone of known foods has all the elements that are needed to sustain life.

Egg-O-See contains all the best elements of wheat in a far more healthful and delicious form than any bread, crackers or ordinary wheat foods. In addition to the best whole wheat delicately flaked and crushed, it is made still more digestible by the addition of refined diastase, the highest grade of malt.

There are no premiums or gifts in the Egg-O-See package; nothing but full measure of the highest grade of cereal food in the world.

The succes of President Roosevelt's efforts to promote peace between Russia and Japan is a triumph for that so-called "shirt sleeve diplomacy" inaugurated by Secretary John Hay. Frankness and directness are the chief attributes of the shirt-sleeve diplomacy and when administered by President Roosevelt, suddenness also plays an important part. The president gave Russia no time to recover from the shock incident to the destruction of her navy, or from the grief incident to the loss of numerous friends and brothers. He gave Japan no time to recover from that access of good feeling which naturally followed so sweeping a victory and while Europe was dreaming of what might be, he suggested in unequivocal terms to both belligerents that this was an excellent place to stop, and his suggestion appealed to both. It was the psysological moment and he grasped it.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
Washington, June 17th, 1905.

Editor Press:—

Washington has been chosen as the meeting place of the Russian and Japanese plenipotentiaries and if, as the President confidently believes they will, they negotiate a convention providing for a lasting peace in the far East it will be known as the treaty of Washington taking its place in history with those important international conventions known as "the Treaty of Ghent," the "Treaty of Berlin," the "Treaty of Paris" and many others.

The selection of Washington as the meeting place of the commissioners of the belligerents was the natural outcome of the differences which had developed between the two nations. Japan steadfastly declined to send representatives to any meeting places in Europe, other than London, feeling that they would be more or less influenced by the hostile sentiment with which they would be surrounded in Paris, Geneva and perhaps even at the Hague. Russia was, on the other hand, entirely opposed to a meeting in Asia and the United States seemed the natural ground of compromise, being too more nearly half way between the two nations than any other country suggested. President Roosevelt, although he had personally favored the Hague, was not loath to have the conference held here for it must emphasize the diplomatic importance of the capital of "the new world."

It is authoritatively stated that if the climate in Washington proves too warm for the comfort of the plenipotentaries every facility will be afforded them to meet elsewhere for a time. That is, they may meet and organize in Washington, then adjourn to some northern summer resort and return to the national capital for their closing sessions. If the commissioners determine to adjourn to some cooler point the President will place at their disposal two small naval vessels, presumably the Sylph and Dolphin. He will himself return from Oyster Bay to welcome them to America but expects to remain but a short time, after which he will again retire to his summer home.

In the direction of economy the investigators are certain to find themselves confronted by numerous instances where material economy of administration would be effected could Congress be induced to adopt rational and business like methods in place of the irrational except from a "Spoils" standpoint now in vogue. For instance under the existing statutes each executive department is compelled to compile, at great expense for compilation and printing, a complete statement of every item expended throughout the year. Nor is this all, for members of Congress, fearful that one will secure something that the other does not, insists that several hundred copies of these be printed for each and every Senator and Representative. Of course they are of no possible use to the members of Congress except to make something to frank to their constitutents as an evidence that the beloved constituent, is not forgotten. The reports are of no use to the constituents either except, possibly, as shaving paper or to light their fires.

Peculiarity About Insurance.

When insurance companies grant insurance an life, they are particular to have the person examined by a doctor to ascertain if he is in sound health. They are most particular about the analysis of the urine for the diseases of the kidneys are the most fatal and so many people have diseased kidneys without knowing it. If there are any symptoms they are usually (even by doctors) attributed to some other cause. INDIGESTION'S RECORD

"The best remedy I can prescribe for your indigestion, madam, is Green's August Flower. I know of several other physicians who prescribe it regularly."

¶Indigestion is making an awful record as a cause of sudden deaths. It is beating heart-failure in its ghastly harvest.

¶You read in the papers daily of apparently healthy and even robust men being suddenly attacked with acute indigestion after enjoying a hearty meal, and of their dying in many cases before a physician could be called in.

¶This should be a warning to you who suffer with regular or periodical attacks of indigestion. If these unfortunate victims of acute indigestion had taken a small dose of Green's August Flower before or after their meals they would not have fallen a prey to such sudden seizures.

¶August Flower prevents indigestion by creating good digestion. It also regulates the liver, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system in a natural way.

¶Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

Who use molasses demand the best syrup obtainable. Treacle is not molasses although there's much treacle sailing under false colors. The difference between treacle and molasses lies in the fact that treacle comes from sugar in the process of making, while molasses is obtained in the process of refining. You can not get good out of bad, but you can get the best from the best which comes from the sugar.

We Sell Molasses

That comes from the best and it is the best. Try our New Orleans, finest quality, and be convinced.

FORTUNE'S LITTLE JOKE.

When Fortune throws a gift at me
I look at is suspiciously,
But not because it's apt to be Selected injudiciously.
I look upon her with distrust
Whatever she may bring,
For, when I stoop, to my disgust
She always jerks the string.

For Fortune takes a great delight
In seeming prodigality;
Her hand is open with no slight
Display of liberality.
But try to take her proffered gift,
It's quite another thing.
Her bounty one can hardly lift
Before she pulls the string.

She seems so debonair and free.
She does it so beguilingly;
It makes it all the worse that she
Will play that trick so smilingly.
How sadly often it occurs
That Fortune's gifts are snatched
Because it is a way of hers
To have that string attached!

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

CHAPTER IV.

SHOWS HOW MINE HOST OF "THE STRIPED ASS" TREATED HIS GUESTS, AND HOW HIS PUNISHMENT WAS MADE TO FIT HIS CRIME.

It wanted but a few minutes to eight the same evening when the figure of Tonti might have been observed riding slowly along near the bank of the Seine. He walked his horse as though he were in no hurry and his ride were without an object. When opposite Le Pont Neuf, he halted and watched for a moment the group of idlers gathered about the equestrian statue of King Henry in the center of the bridge, who were leaning over the parapet and engaged in bandying jests with the boatmen passing beneath the arches. Having seemingly gained all the amusement possible from a contemplation of this spectacle, Tonti soon resumed his journey, turning off in a short time from the river bank and threading his way through various cross-streets until he reached the Rue St. Honore. Following this thoroughfare as far as the city gate, he stopped his horse in the shelter of the wall of Les Capucins, to await his companion.

In a moment or two he beheld a sight that made it hard for his mirth-loving nature to keep itself within bounds. A small white ass came ambling along and passed him, carrying a very fat, unwieldly-formed monk of the Franciscan order, clad in gray cowl, girdle, and sandals. His monkship apparently had not been astride an animal for a long time, and such were the evident signs of discomfort on his face that one instantly surmised that he was undergoing a penance of some sort. He made no attempt to guide the ass, but sat holding on helplessly to the rope that served as rein and bridle. The gate was not yet closed for the night, so he passed unchallenged, the guards laughing heartily at the figure he cut. Tonti waited until he had gotten a couple of minutes' start of him, and then turned into the road and passed likewise through the gate without hindrance. The night watch had just arrived, and in the confusion attending the change of guard he was easily overlooked. He had hardly gone a score of paces beyond, when he heard the gate close behind him. Any one leaving or entering after that hour would be carefully scrutinized.

In the fast-gathering gloom, Tonti spied his ecclesiastical friend trotting peacefully along the Chemin de Villers. He hurriedly followed him, but preserved a respectful distance. He received no sign, neither heard any sound from him. Becoming alarmed lest he had really made a mistake, he was about to turn back toward the city, when suddenly the ghostly figure began beating his animal with the rein and kicking his sides as effectively as he could with his sandaled feet.

"A murrain seize this beast for a vicious, rough-riding child of Beelzebub. May the devil take him and all his kind! Ha! mon ami Tonti, I feared it was not you. Someone else followed me on a horse almost up to the gate, and I did not know but that you were he. I fear that he suspected that I was disguised. I don't believe that I sit well when I ride."

A shout of laughter from Tonti greeted this speech.

"Peste! Pompon, if I do not get you a place in the Horse Guards. You sit your animal like a sack of meal."

"You would look like one yourself," Pompon replied, rather testily, "if you had a back stuffed with straw and a paunch made out of enough hay to keep a horse in health for a week, all squeezed into a heavy cowl and tied together with a stout cord. Between the heat and discomfort of my disguise, and the jolting of this beast, I am thankful we have only four leagues to go. He who is in great haste should not ride an ass."

"Where got you your disguise?" queried Tonti.

"From my friend the cabaretier," was the reply. "He was one of M. Fouquet's secret agents; many is the message I have taken from him. The words 'Remember sixty-four' that I told you to whisper to him is the secret means of recognition among all those who were connected with the unfortunate minister. It was in 1664, you know, that he fell."

"Are there any others?"

"Hundreds. They are in every rank and condition. M. Fouquet was a good master to serve and a liberal one, as I can bear witness. All who served him loved him."

Talking thus of his old employer, a theme Pompon never tired of, the strangely assorted pair rode on into the shades of the on-coming night. When about half the distance had been traversed, they turned off into a road leading to the left, and by ten o'clock saw a light or two from the small hamlet of Ecouen twinkling in the darkness ahead of them. On reaching the outskirts of the village, they dismounted and led their beasts into a wood at the side of the road and tethered them.

Entering the town on foot, they found it considerably later than they had hoped for, so they quickened their pace, lest the inn be closed for the night. Here and there a light was visible where some late-a-bed still kept his house open for a neighborly game of dice, and from one or two half-open doors came the sound of feasting. As they drew near the most prominent of the window-lights, they found it to belong to an inn of the older type. All was still in the story above, and quiet reigned about the place. A shed for the disposal of travelers' horses was situated at one end of the building, while above the door a sign of some sort grated harshly as the light night wind moved it slowly to and fro. It was too dark for the two men to decipher anything on the signboard, so they approached the window from which the glow proceeded. Tonti raised himself on tiptoe and looked in.

The interior was apparently empty, and consisted of the usual public-room of the average inn of the period. Upon the huge hearth a bright fire was blazing, which cast alternate light and shade upon the low ceiling and the further corners of the room. A number of heavy wooden tables with benches around them filled up the greater portion of the floor space. On these a profusion of emptied, dirty glasses and mugs bespoke a good night's custom for the proprietor. At the side of the room was arranged a kind of private office, as it were, fenced off from the rest by a railing, behind which was placed a table and a bench. It was evidently the innkeeper's especial domain, for, as Tonti's eyes became more accustomed to the half-gloom, he spied the figure of a man seated upon the bench, busily engaged in counting a small pile of coin spread out upon the table before him. He glanced uneasily over his shoulder now and then at the door and the window, as though fearful of being seen. He soon finished his task, and quickly swept the money into a small leather pouch, which he closed with a look of satisfaction, stowing it away in the recesses of his blouse. At this moment Tonti left the window, and, advancing to the door, struck it sharply with the hilt of his sword. Pompon, whispering that he would come in later, disappeared in the darkness.

"Hola! Landlord, open here! Would you keep a gentleman and a soldier waiting in the night when you have within a good fire to warm his hands and good wine to cheer his heart? Corbleu! Open, I say, or it will be the worse for you. I am not the man to be kept waiting."

So speaking, he belabored the door with hilt and fist so lustily that the landlord came running to let him in, crying:

"Yes, yes, gentlemen, in one moment, I pray you. But do not awaken the whole house. It is late," he continued, unfastening the door and opening it an inch, peering out meanwhile to see what manner of guests he was welcoming, "late indeed for honest folk to be about."

As soon as the crack of the door widened sufficiently to admit the hilt of the sword, Tonti inserted it, and with a quick pressure with this lever he swung the door open in spite of the landlord's efforts to hold it.

"How now, Sir Innkeeper! Dame! but I believe you would have kept me out there a full hour longer if you had had your way."

So speaking, he stepped into the light of the room. Upon seeing a man evidently a soldier and from Paris, the landlord's fears quieted themselves. One suspicion, however, remained.

"Pardon, Sir Capitaine," he cried, bowing obsequiously, "but where is your companion? Did you not say that there were two of you, a soldier and a gentleman?"

Tonti was puzzled for a moment, and then laughed.

"And may I not be both? Here, bite that, and tell me if it be gold or no. If so, fetch me a bottle of wine, the very best, and some food." So saying, he flung down a pistole upon the table near him.

The innkeeper quickly seized it, bit it, and after testing its ring, pocketed it with alacrity, his suspicions vanished.

"Draw near the fire," he exclaimed, as he busily stirred the logs, "and I shall return presently with the best bottle to be found this side of Paris. It has been in the cellar for 14 years, ever since I came to this town, and was there I know not how long before me."

With these words, he hastily brushed off a bench, motioned Tonti to be seated, and was gone. Tonti looked about him carefully.

"It must be the place," he murmured to himself. "He said he had been here 14 years, and it is just that length of time since Fouquet's downfall."

His eyes wandered toward the fireplace and his thoughts were confirmed. A huge stone slab some seven feet in length and three in width constituted the hearth. This stone was bordered by a single row of bricks that were covered with dust and ashes. Tonti's eyes danced with excitement as he beheld them, and he wondered why Pompon was delayed so long and what his plan would be to get a chance of testing the truth of his cipher-message.

Presently he heard the innkeeper returning, and he reappeared bearing the remains of a huge goose-pie in one arm and a dusty, musty, cobwebbed bottle of wine in the other. These he placed before his guest, who was soon devouring the one and sipping the other, whose grapes must have weighted the vine on the sunny vineyard slopes fully 30 years before. He was about to compliment the landlord standing before him upon the excellence of his providing when he heard the voice of singing in the street outside the inn and close at hand.

"Quand nous fumes sur le pont qui

were the words they heard. Then came a silence, broken only by the shuffling sound as of some one walking laboriously among the pebbles and sand of the roadway. Then came the song nearer than before:

"Quand nous fumes le Saintonge, Helas, mon Dieu!"

followed by a heavy knock at the door. The innkeeper hastened to open it, and the light from the fire fell full on the figure of Tonti's late companion. He had found and trimmed a young tree into a serviceable pilgrim's staff, and his expression was that of great weariness.

"Pax vobiscum," he said gravely, addressing the innkeeper. This individual crossed himself, replying, "And with you, father."

The monk then laid aside his staff, and approached the table next to the one at which Tonti was seated.

"I would have lodging and a bit of food, for I have fasted since daybreak. Gold have I not, for it would ill become him whose boast is that poverty is his bride to carry any money with him. But I am privileged to grant an indulgence, in return for food and lodging," and the tired monk settled down upon a bench and looked hungrily about him.

"Have you no relics that will ward off disease?" asked the innkeeper. "A bone from the hand of some good saint or something from the holy land?"

"Nay, nay," exclaimed the monk in seeming anger. "I am no hawker of bogus relics, nor claim any kindred with the devil-spawn who go through the land plying their unholy trade. With them they have but to see your money in their hand when the merry rougues will sell you a cart-load of laths from the ark of pere Noah, a ring from the snout of St. Anthony's pig, or the crest of the cock that crowed before Pilate."

The landlord seemed duly impressed with the superior merits of the begging friar, and started off to get some scraps for his meal. Tonti, who had up to this time remained silent, watching the game his companion was playing, called after him:

"Bring the reverend father's meal to my table, and fetch another glass, that he may share my wine with me. I warrant he is a good judge of it."

The monk bowed his thanks, and replied with a wink at Tonti:

"He is an ill guest that never drinks to his host. Might I suggest, my soldier friend, that the good innkeeper fetch a glass for himself?"

Tonti agreed, and the host hastened to find the glasses, feeling glad to get a chance to taste some of his own rare wine at the expense of some one else.

As soon as he had disappeared, the monk reached over to Tonti's glass and shook a white powder into it, from a bit of paper in his hand, then filled it from the bottle. "Now, your part is to see that yon rascal gets your glass," he said in a low voice, and resumed his seat.

The innkeeper soon returned with two fresh glasses, which Tonti filled, and then by a deft movement of the hands he exchanged his glass for that nearest the landlord.

"Here's to our host," cried Tonti, as the man sat down and seized his glass. "May he never want a lodger!"

"And to this goodly quiet inn, the—what is your house called, sir host?" asked the strange monk.

"The Striped Ass," was the reply.

"To the Striped Ass, then," continued Pompon; "may his bray be ever loud to attract customers, and his temper mild, so that he will spare them kicks."

All three drained their glasses, and a period of silence ensued, broken only by the sound of the fire and the munching of the goose-pie, as Tonti made another onslaught. A touch from the monk's foot under the table a few moments later made him look up, and he beheld the effects of the drug beginning already to manifest themselves on the face of the innkeeper, whose copious potations during the early part of the evening made him an easy prey. His eyes seemed heavy, and an overpowering desire to sleep seized him. A moment he struggled against the feeling, then surrendering to it entirely, his face fell forward on his hands, which lay upon the table.

Pompon jumped up quickly and, seizing the man, shook him to make sure of the depth of his slumbers. There was no response. "He will sleep thus for 24 hours. Let us hasten, though."

A table and bench were first placed in front of the door leading out of the room into the other part of the house, so that they would have time to leave in case any one approached from that direction. The other door was fastened, and the curtain drawn. Pompon, then taking a small dagger, knelt down beside the hearth, and counting the row of bricks until he came to the middle one, carefully dug away all the accumulated dust and dirt, and gently pried the brick from its place. Beneath it was seen a small iron ring, which he seized. It gave readily, and could be pulled out about an inch. This evidently withdrew some hidden bolt, for when he cautiously bore the weight of his foot on one extremity of the huge stone, it turned slowly on an unseen axis, one end rising into the air while the other disappeared in a large space below. Bending down, Pompon found a cavity corresponding in width and length to the stone and about four feet in depth. By lying on the floor and stretching over the hole, he was able to feel the contents. A smothered exclamation of joy passed his lips, as he tossed to the floor a bag of money, and soon after feeling around more carefully in the opening, he found another.

"What say you now, mon ami?" he cried joyfully. "Did I not say M. Fouquet (Heaven rest his soul!) was faithful to them who served him faithfully? Here are the 2,000 pistoles."

They placed the money on the table, and swung the stone back to its normal position. Pompan then handed the bags to Tonti, and urged him to go ahead of him to the place where their animals had been left, saying that he would remain behind and attend to the unbarricading of the door and yet overtake him before he had his horse untied.

Tonti did as suggested, leaving Pompon in the room. No sooner had he gone than Pompon approached the slumbering landlord, and, turning his face toward the light, examined it closely. As he did so, a look of awakened recognition was confirmed, and Pompon's eyes became smaller and glittered with a strange envenomed look of hatred like a snake about to strike. With deft fingers he searched the clothes of his victim, but it was not for robbery, for he left the bag of money he found there; something else was the object of his search.

Her Company Voice.

"Who is that in the parlor, Nellie?" asked the little sister.

"O, yes, there must be some one else," rejoined the little girl, "for mama has her company voice on."

It was a little squib under the heading of "Fun," which a member of the family read aloud from the paper. The circle about the table who heard it smiled, and one said, "That's a good joke." But a more thoughtful member turned it over in her mind. She was the mother, and she admitted to herself that it was more than a good joke—that in many instances it was sober truth.

It came home to her heart with great signficance, for she acknowledged to herself that "the company voice" was entirely too often put on when in the presence of those outside the home circle. We wish to appear at our best before those whose good opinions we desire to gain. But with those who love us how often we speak in irritable, harsh, quick tones.—Evangelist.

A Doubtful Compliment.

"My dear, I have a great compliment for you," said the Boston man to his New York niece, who was paying a month's visit and attending many serious entertainments.

"A compliment?" and the pretty eyebrows were raised incredulously.

"Yes," said her uncle, cordially. "Professor Mildew said he noticed you particularly at the reception Monday afternoon, and he thought you had a most intelligent face."

"There, aunty," said the frivolous young person, turning reproachful eyes on her relative. "I told you I looked like a perfect frump in that brown dress, but you said I didn't! You see what he thought, don't you? He couldn't think of another thing to say!"—Youth's Companion.

Twitting on Facts.

"A certain class of insane persons are remarkable for their ready and apt retorts," said Dr. George T. Winston, the criminologist. "I have in mind a young man in a Boston retreat. The first time I ever saw him he sat on the floor, swearing bitterly.

" 'Tut, tut!' said I. 'Don't swear!'

" 'Why not?' said he.

" 'Because,' said I. 'you won't go to Heaven if you do.'

" 'Oh,' said the young man, disdainfully, 'I'm not going to try to go to Heaven. There's more trying now than'll ever get in.' "—N. Y. Tribune.

The Professor's Function.

An Oxford professor, distinguished for scholarly habits of the most pronounced description, remarked to his companion at table that he had accepted the invitation of a well-known peer for a week's shooting in Scotland.

"Why Professor Blank," exclaimed his companion, "I didn't know you were a gun!"

"I'm not, my dear," said the professor. "I'm a knife and fork."—Youth's Companion.

RAILWAY RATE LEGISLATION

Biennial Convention of Conductors Ask Congress Not to Pass Adverse Railroad Laws.

At the biennial convention of the Order of Railway Conductors recently held at Portland, Oregon, resolutions were unanimously adopted voicing their sentiments as to the effect of proposed railway rate legislation on the 1,300,000 railroad employes, whom they in part represented. These resolutions "indorse the attitude of President Roosevelt in condemning secret rebates and other illegalities, and commend the attitude of the heads of American Railways, who, with practical unanimity, have joined with the President on this question." They then respectfully point out to Congress the "inadvisability of legislation vesting in the hands of a commission power over railway rates, now lower by far in the United States than in any other country," because such regulation would "result in litigation and confusion and inevitably tend to an enforced reduction in rates, irrespective of the question of the ability of the railroads to stand the reduction, especially in view of the increased cost of their supplies and materials." They further protested against such power being given to the present Inter-State Commission because "the proposed legislation is not in harmony with our idea of American jurisprudence, inasmuch as it contemplates that a single body shall have the right to investigate, indict, try, condemn and then enforce its decisions at the cost of the carriers, pending appeal, which is manifestly inequitable."

The conductors base their demand for only such legislation if any, as would "secure and insure justice and equity and preserve equal rights to all parties concerned" on the ground that the low cost of transportation "is the result of the efficiency of American railway management and operation which have built up the country through constant improvement and development of territory, while at the same time recognition has been given to the value of intelligence among employes in contrast to foreign methods, where high freight rates and lowest wages to employes obtain."

In pressing their claim against legislation adverse to their interests, they point out the fact that "the freight rates of this country average only two per cent. of the cost of articles to the consumer, thus making the freight rate so insignificant a factor in the selling price that numerous standard articles are sold at the same price in all parts of the country."

TALES OF THE TOTS.

"Say, papa," queried little Harold, looking up from his book, "do they plant bird seed when they want to raise sparrow grass?"

Little Elsie's father was a very homely man. One day, after looking at him steadily for some time, Elsie said:

"Mamma, didn't they have any good-looking men in stock when you went shopping for a husband?"

"The Bible says there will be no marrying in Heaven," said small Harry. "I wonder if that is true?"

"Of course it is," replied his little sister. "How could the women marry when there are no men in the place?"

Small Bobby had just returned from an afternoon children's party.

"What kind of refreshments did you have?" asked his mother.

"Liquid," answered Bobby.

"Liquid!" she exclaimed, in surprise.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the son of his father. "Us boys all ran away from the girls and went swimming."

Two little girls became involved in a quarrel, the other day, which culminated in physical violence. One of the mothers took her little daughter to task very severely. Wishing to emphasize the enormity of her offense, the mother said: "It's the devil who tells you to do such naughty things." The little girl replied between sobs: "He may have told me to pull her hair, but I thought of kicking her shins all by myself."

THREE YEARS AFTER.

Eugene E. Lario, of 751 Twentieth Avenue, ticket seller in the Union Station, Denver, Col., says: "You are at liberty to repeat what I first stated through our Denver papers about Doan's Kidney Pills in the summer of 1899, for I have had no reason in the interim to change my opinion of the remedy. I was subject to severe attacks of backache, always aggravated if I sat long at a desk. Doan's Kidney Pills absolutely stopped my backache. I have never had a pain or a twinge since."

HINTS ABOUT BOOKS

WHOLESOME FICTION AND HISTORY GIVE GIRLS IDEAS.

Pleasure and Knowledge from Novels—Good Plan for History Study—"Most of Us Shockingly Ignorant of Things That Lie About Us"—Business Girl Should Read Nature Books—How to Deal with Each Book to Make Reading It Profitable.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The first question that arises when considering what our girls shall read, is what is their motive in reading. Do they read simply for diversion, for the recreation and pastime which are legitimate, or do they read for mental enrichment and information? If the first is the object in view the answer is easy. For amusement and pleasure, girls, like everybody else, must seek the story tellers of the world, and lose the cares of reality in the romances that make them forget the daily grind. The day for condemning novels by wholesale has forever passed. It is only a narrow and prejudiced person who frowns upon fiction as foolish and hurtful and who insists that all one's reading must be along lines of hard and fast actuality.

The for novel reading in unimaginative persons is sometimes dormant. They have had so little time to read that they have left fiction out of the reckoning. But they are in the minority. The love for a good story is as old as the human race. In every age and clime, in every literature, under every sky, we find people ready to listen entranced to the man who can please them by a delightful story. Children and grown people alike fall under the spell of the story-teller. If therefore our girls wish to read novels let them do so. They have a wide range of choice, and let it be noted that many novelists exact close attention from their readers and weave into their narratives a great deal of history, philosophy and accurate description. The stories for example of Lafcadio Hearn are penetrated and infused with the atmosphere of Japan, and no one can fail to learn a great deal about that wonderful empire and the wonderful people who inhabit it, if she reads the picturesque books of this lamented writer.

Equally, a girl who would like to know something of the life of India may learn a great deal about it by reading "Kim," that masterpiece of Rudyard Kipling, or any book on India by Flora Annie Steele, or a little unobtrusive book entitled "The Bishop's Conversion," the author of which was long a missionary in that land of mystery and romance. Oriental civilizations are in the strongest contrast to our own, and one may learn much more about them in the pages of novels than in graver histories. Boys read with great delight and profit the long list of historical fiction which is generally known as the "Henty Books." A girl with little time to study might read these books with much profit. Girls as well as boys should read "Froissart's Chronicles" and thus come into touch with the chivalric days of the past. The novels of Mrs. Oliphant, of Charlotte Bronte, George Eliot and Jane Austen are good reading for girls and do more than merely offer entertainment.

* * * * *

If girls desire more serious reading, and wish to take up any definite historic period, the best way is to let their reading focus itself about a single central and conspicuous figure. Take for instance Queen Elizabeth. In studying her era, one finds her surrounded by a group of great statesmen and by another group of writers who are still influencing and coloring English literature. Very profitable reading may be done by a circle of girls who meet at stated intervals and take up the different phases of life under some great ruler or other personage of distinction.

If Elizabeth be chosen, one girl may select the ordinary household life of that day, and let her reading turn toward the various ways in which it contrasts with our present day life. Another may take Sir Walter Raleigh, another Philip of Spain, still another Mary Queen of Scots. Shakespeare and Chaucer will fall into the reading of those who study those days of historic England which led up to the England of to-day.

* * * * *

A very wide and interesting field for inquiry is presented to those who wish to read about our own country. All the story of this continent from its discovery by Columbus to the present day is filled with graphic and dramatic incidents which are full of excitement, movement and charm. Every library has shelves filled with fascinating literature, relating to some part of the history of this new world. Let a girl take, if she wishes, the history of her own state, and whether she live in Massachusetts or Kentucky, Connecticut, New York or Tennessee, she will find an immense amount of profitable reading about the people and the progress of that peculiar locality. Most of us are shockingly ignorant of the things that lie about us. Few of us know very much about our own great country. In a house filled with books and occupied by intelligent people, you shall easily find nobody able to give a list of the successive presidents of this nation from Washington to Roosevelt. Girls cannot do better than to read American history.

* * * * *

A girl who is at business all day, and who has only her evenings in which to read, must necessarily specialize. If she attempt to read in a desultory fashion, taking a book at haphazard from the shelves, she will read to little purpose. For every one of us, it is a good thing to have some outside interest, entirely different from the daily routine; an interest that takes us into a new world, broadens our horizon and gives us different thoughts. I knew a young woman whose life was a ceaseless round of drudgery. It was her great delight now and then to read Ruskin and Emerson. "What do you get from those writers?" I asked. "Oh," she said, "I get beautiful words and beautiful thoughts, a feeling of the sky and of space to breathe." Toil did not crush her. She could forget it.

Those authors who give us inspiration and courage and a broader view of human affairs, who make us feel that this world is not all, that we are going on to a grander life hereafter, are to us as the angels of God. Girls should not be satisfied to live on a low plane. They want noble ideals, and these are found in the books of great writers. If you have to stand behind a counter and measure tape and ribbon, it is a good thing for you to read books about the birds and the plants and the rocks and the stars and the sea.

* * * * *

Mrs. Browning says: "We get no good by being ungenerous even to a book." Outside of earnest and vigorous study, the books that we go to in our intimate hours should not be approached in a spirit of bargaining. Books are like friends; when we take them our best, they give us their best in return. Some of us spend so much time in hesitating and deciding what books to read that we end by reading none at all.

A certain degree of courtesy should be extended to every book. Read its title page, make the acquaintance thus of its author, always notice the name of the publisher. If the volume be one you like, enter in a blank book its name and the date at which you began and finished it, and copy any sentences or passages that were especially pleasing to you. The girl who reads in this careful way will be a good talker, will write a bright letter, and will never suffer from loneliness or solitude. She who loves books need never fear an attack of the blues, and will not deteriorate mentally, nor lose what she gained in the days when she went to school.

WILD FLOWER BEAUTY.

Everyone Can Add This to Her Home and the Gathering and Arrangement Is Most Interesting.

Not every one has a flower garden, but every one who spends even a part of the summer in the country has the freedom of the roadsides, pastures, meadow and woods; the wild gardens which belong to every man and no man, where every one is free to gather and no one to forbid. Of course it is by courtesy and custom that this freedom extends to the fields and woods, and perhaps the unacknowledged obligation enhances the privilege of leaving the long, narrow roadside flower beds and looking for rarer and more effective things along fences and hedges, and in shadowed and solitary places.

If one has acquired the habit of wild flower gathering, and the knowledge of what to gather and how to bring her gleanings safely home, and the still further knowledge of the best decorative effect to be gotten from them, she has reached a possibility of great satisfaction and every-day happiness.—Candace Wheeler, in the May Atlantic.

Graying Hair.

Sage tea is very good for hair that is turning prematurely gray. Make a strong brew with the pressed leaves or, better still, make a sage extract. Get four ounces of the dried leaves and put in a pint of alcohol and a pint of rainwater. Let stand for a week, agitating occasionally. Then strain through muslin. Retain the leaves and with them put two quarts of water, boil down to one quart, mix it with the extract and add a dram of tincture of cantharides. Apply with small brush and rub well into the scalp.—Mme. Qui Vive.

REASONABLE REFLECTION.

A Practice That Is Reprehensible at Unseasonable Hours Only.

John Farson, the Chicago banker, who has drawn up a list of satirical rules for entering society, holds that there is too much dissipation among the rich, says the New York Tribune.

"A remark I heard the other day," he said to a reporter, "would apply well to the average society man.

"A middle-aged couple were talking about the Russo-Japanese war and the habits of Japan.

"'How curious,' the man said, 'that Japanese custom is of taking off the shoes before entering the house.'

"'It is only curious,' the woman retorted, 'because it is practiced at all hours instead of at night solely.'"

It Pays to Read Newspapers.

Cox, Wis., June 12.—Frank M. Russell, of this place, had Kidney Disease so bad that he could not walk. He tried Doctors' treatment and many different remedies, but was getting worse. He was very low.

He read in a newspaper how Dodd's Kidney Pills were curing cases of Kidney Trouble, Bright's Disease and Rheumatism, and thought he would try them. He took two boxes, and now he is quite well. He says:—

"I can now work all day, and not feel tired. Before using Dodd's Kidney Pills I couldn't walk across the floor."

Mr. Russell's is the most wonderful case ever known in Chippewa County. This new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills—is making some miraculous cures in Wisconsin.

New York Central Lines Still Lead.

At the conference of the Managers of the New York Central Lines, held in New York June 6th, all lines being represented by their General Managers and Passenger officials, it was decided, beginning with the regular summer change, Sunday, June 18th, to quicken the speed of the "Twentieth Century Limited" so as to make the time between New York and Chicago eighteen hours instead of twenty hours, the New York Central Lines having made the twenty-hour time during the past three years, and having also made the run between New York and Chicago in twenty hours with their "Exposition Flyer" for the one hundred and eighty days of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, twelve years ago.

The New York Central Lines make the point that the New York Central has had in service the "Empire State Express"—which has been the fastest train in the world for its distance, 440 miles—for fourteen years, having held the world's record for that time, and for three years and 180 days having held the world's record for a thousand mile train in twenty hours.

The proposed schedule of eighteen hours is simply the extension of the time of the "Empire State Express" through from Buffalo to Chicago, the time having been made for fourteen years between New York and Buffalo. On this new schedule, the train will leave Chicago at 2:30 p. m., arriving Grand Central Station, New York, at 9:30 next morning, and, returning, will leave New York 3:30 p. m., reaching Chicago 8:30 a. m. following day.

At the same time, the "Lake Shore Limited" will be quickened up an hour and will make the time from Chicago to New York in 23 hours instead of 24, leaving Chicago 5:30 p. m. by the Lake Shore and arriving New York 5:30 p. m. by the New York Central.

The "Southwestern Limited" train, No. 11, which now leaves Grand Central Station at 1:00 p. m., will, beginning June 18th, leave at 2:04 p. m., saving an hour to an hour and a half on the present journey to St. Louis and Cincinnati.

Where Old Ocean's Salty Breezes Blow—An Ideal Summer Territory.

Long Island as a summer resort grows in popularity each year, for once a dweller on this exceptionally favored Atlantic Coast Island always a dweller is the rule; its natural attractions are marvelous in variety, its South or Ocean Shore is most widely known, for here the surf bathing is particularly fine and the sweltering heat, so often encountered at other Atlantic points, is a thing unknown, because this beautiful Island alone trends East and West directly across the Summer South winds, blowing fresh and cool over the Atlantic.

It has besides the open ocean the Great South Bay and other inland seas further to the east, where safe sailing and still salt water bathing is at its best.

On the North or Sound Shore the attractions of salt water are also most excellent; the surf of course is lacking, but instead this shore has bluffs and hills tree-clad to the high water mark.

Fishing both in fresh and salt water is a noted attraction of Long Island.

Golf and tennis enthusiasts are splendidly cared for, as L. I. links and courts are unsurpassed.

The splendid system of highways has always attracted the rider, driver and automobilist.

Hence, all in all, for rest or sport afoot or ashore no coast resort has more to offer.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Uterine Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Can we dispute the well-known fact that American women are nervous?

How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous, it seems as if I should fly;" or, "Don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep, you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Fits of depression or restlessness and irritability. Spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps. Pain in the ovaries and between the shoulders. Loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia. A tendency to cry at the least provocation. All this points to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. M. E. Shotwell, of 103 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I cannot express the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, backache, headache, loss of appetite. I could not sleep and would walk the floor almost every night.

"I had three doctors and got no better, and life was a burden. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has worked wonders for me.

"I am a well woman, my nervousness is all gone and my friends say I look ten years younger."

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all women of its virtues? Surely you cannot wish to remain sick and weak and discouraged, exhausted each day, when you can be as easily cured as other women.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAINT.

Important Memorandum.—A job complete, done by a good painter, with the best quality of paint, costing say $60.00 ($40.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last five years. The same paint applied by a dauber ($20.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last only two years. Thus the "per-year-cost" of the good painter's job is $12.00—the poor painter's, $20.00.

The oil! linseed oil! Just pure linseed is the "life"—the one great requisite of good paint for which there is no substitute—and the sure way to get the pure, fresh linseed oil is to buy the oil and separately. For every gallon of Kinloch Paint buy one gallon of linseed oil. This makes two gallons of paint, ready for use. You then know that the paint you're putting on your house is alive—"the genuine oil is in it," and paint is not paint unless it contains 50% of really pure oil. We will further explain the virtues of Kinloch Paint if you will call and see us.

Lucas Paints

(Tinted Gloss)

challenge a practical test in competition with any other.

Why do they dare?

Because Lucas Paints are honestly made of pure materials, cover more surface than any other paint, have a richer gloss, hold their color longer, wear longer and cost less because they go so far. Try them—or at least ask your dealer.

Dizzy Spells.

Edward Happ, of Titusville, Pa., had such pain in the back that he could not do any kind of work and had such dizzy spells that he would have to hold on to something to keep from falling. It seemed as if he would never stop urinating. He had been out of health for 15 years and could hardly sleep from pain in his stomach. He says Thompson's Barosma completely cured me, purified my blood, and made me feel many years younger. Thompson's Barosma 50c and $1 00 For sale by R. C. Dodson.

Quality vs Quantity.

Hard muscles and strong body do not depend on the quantity of food you eat, but its perfect digestion and proper assimilation. When you take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure your system gets all the nourishment out of all the food you eat. It digests what you eat regardless of the condition of the stomach and conveys the nutrient properties to the blood and tissues. This builds up and strengthens the entire system.
